Hullett House

Hullett House is a celebration of Hong Kong's rich and vibrant "East meets West" heritage. The design-led heritage building consists of an intimate hotel, seven restaurants and bars, and a souvenir store. The property and its various elements are all housed within one of the oldest buildings located in the heart of Hong Kong, dating back to 1881, and is a rare example of magnificent colonial architecture.

Originally built in 1881, the site is one of the four oldest surviving government buildings in Hong Kong. For more than 100 years it was occupied by Hong Kong's Royal Marine Police. Hullett House has been designed to encapsulate the rich heritage and history that is embedded in Hong Kong's past. Each restaurant and suite has been individually created to embody a period in history and highlight the importance of Hong Kong's cultural past.
